Bryant General Building

Having learnt his trade working for companies as a kitchen and bathroom fitter, after 10 years, Ben then took over his Father's business and had ambitious plans to do a little building of his own!

This is when he met 49 and was given the opportunity to take on his first commercial job. And oh, what a job - the home of 49 itself!

With a very happy client base and a passion for taking on new challenges, Ben's business is set to become a skyscraper.

Bryant General Building

"49 has given me a huge opportunity not only with my first commercial contract but also helped me with a daunting amount of paperwork, getting me up to speed with Health & Safety requirements, Risk Assessments and has even offered to put me on a course to help further my business skills."

Ben Bryant, CEO, Bryant

Building a Better Future

With ambitions to work for himself, having learnt his trade working for commercial companies, Ben took over his Father's business with ambitions for growth.

With no time for marketing, the majority of Ben's clients came through Word of Mouth referrals - a testament to his consistent high-quality service and work ethic.

Undaunted by the scale of the refurbishment of 49, and seeing the opportunity to grow his business, Ben's motto is "Anything is Possible!" and work commenced.

Ben's years working in the design of kitchens and bathrooms inspired him to suggest some inspirational additional features for the 49 HQ and has resulted in a top-quality environment.

Since taking on the project, Ben has taken on four full-time staff, bought four fully branded vans and has teams working on multiple jobs consistently.

"We knew Ben had a great reputation for domestic jobs and that giving him his first commercial contract, and some business support, would give him the impetus he needed to expand - and he has - quadrupling his business in a year. We're delighted for him!"
